Cosmetic composition for preventing skin trouble with Hemp extract ingredient

HEMP, the world wide spotlight, is NOT marijuana. Please distinguish HEMP, the world wide spotlight, from marijuana.

Cannabinoid, which is extracted from marijuana, mainly contains cannabidiol and tetrahydrocannabinol. Cannabidiol(CBD) is a healing element that stabilizes one's body and mind. Tetrahydrocannabinol(THC) is a psychotropic element that provokes hallucination. Marijuana is classified as hemp or marijuana depending on the amount of THC it contains.
Marijuana, which we commonly classify as drug, contains 6%~20% of THC. On the other hand, HEMP only contains 2% of THC. With less amount of THC, and more amount of CBD, it is already much commercialized in various countries. Furthermore, some countries classify HEMP as health functional food.
THC is mainly dispersed on the flower, leaf, and the peel of the seed. Our country only permits to manufacture and sell the stems and peeled seeds of HEMP, which does not contain much THC.

※ What is cannabinoid?

Cannabinoid is a compound of THC, CBD, and other elements that stimulates the body's cannabinoid receptor to release neurotransmitter. It was first found in marijuana, and until now there are more than 100 types of cannabinoid that have been found.

HEMP, with its golden ratio of omega 3,6,9, does not only moisturizes your skin, but also blocks UV rays, and prevents inflammation.

HEMP contains omega 3, 6, 9, which cannot be produced naturally by your body. With its golden 'WHO recommended' ratio of 1:3:1, it provides lucrative nutrients to your skin.
Omega moisturizes your skin for longer duration. It also functions as a spring of your skin, providing flexibility and elasticity. If your body lacks omega, your cell membrane will lose elasticity, making your skin dry which may lead to other problems.
To keep your skin moisturized, certain amount of oil is essential. Omega oil contains unsaturated fatty acids that form moisture barriers around your skin and help maintain elasticity. It is especially efficient for fragile skin such as underneath your eyes and around your mouth.
Another reason why omega is receiving so much attention is because of its advantages regarding skincare. Omega 3 strengthens individuals' UV sensitivity, protecting the skin from the sun. Omega 6 helps prevent skin diseases like atopy and psoriasis. Omega 9 has anti-inflammatory effects which reduces inflammation and lowers the chance of getting acnes.
Furthermore, it reduces the side effects of isotinone, a substance normally used as acne treatment, making it helpful when using it during acne treatments.
